

Maura and the Dream Land

Maura woke up in a land full of clouds and stars. She looked around searching for her teddy bear, Paws, but he was nowhere to be seen. She stood up from the ground, wiping off with her hands the glitter that was on her skirt. She then set off to look for Paws. Maura was constantly looking around curiously, the ground full of glitter, the clouds that were so close that they could be easily grabbed if she reached out her hands, the birds that were singing the most beautiful melodies...

Eventually, Maura arrived at the river, with water so clean she could see the pebbles underneath. She carefully crossed it and spotted Paws far in the distance. She approached him running. When she arrived, she found Paws surrounded by blue butterflies. They slowly stopped at the top of Maura's head, forming a tiara that beautifully contrasted with her blonde curls. She then heard a voice calling her from afar.

"Maura,... Maura..."

She then felt something shaking her body and opened her eyes. She just woke up from the "Dream Land" and Paws had always been by her side.